Private Postoffices.

The federal authorities in New York city have been making a raid upon what are known as the private postoffices there, and propose to suppress certain long established institutions which are in the business of distributing by carriers and messengers large quantities of postal matter which they have to circulate in order to find that they can send out more cheaply by this private service than by the postoffice agencies. It is not, perhaps, generally known that the postal law prohibits the establishment of any "private express for the conveyance of letters or packets, which in any manner cause or provide for the conveyance of the same by regular trips at stated periods, over any post route which, or may be, established by law; or from any city, town or place to any other city, town or place between which the mail is regularly carried," under a penalty of $100 for those who establish it and of $50 for any one who patronizes it. The reason for such prohibition, it is claimed, lies in the fact that the average rates of postage established by the government are founded on a consideration alike of the profits in delivering letters in populous communities and between near points and of sending them to far distant stations; and these laws are "to prevent people from calling on the postoffice to do their expensive work, such as carrying letters to New Mexico, Arizona and Dakota, and employing private agents to do the inexpensive work." Before there were letter carriers such dispatches and agencies existed in the large cities by the toleration of the law, but now all the streets of a city over which the carriers pass are regarded as a postal route and come within the inhibition. This regulation by the government, or the construction put upon it by the federal authorities, does not seem reasonable, especially in view of the high rates of drop letter postage. Notwithstanding the reduction of ordinary letter postage, soon to take effect, from three to two cents, the rate for city letters is to remain at two, and it is easy to see how merchants and other business men can much better afford to hire carriers specially to deliver circulars or letters in large quantities than to send them through the postoffice. A man can deliver thousands of these in a day and at one-fifth the cost that the postoffice charges. If it may be permitted individuals to do this on their own account there is no good reason for prohibiting agencies which make a business of it. The firms in New York who have built up a large interest, by delivering mail at one cent for which the government charges two cents, will not give it up without a legal resistance, in which it will be supported by the mercantile community whom they accommodate. The government will have to show some better reason than that it takes money from the postal department to make popular this regulation against the private message deliveries. The express companies, the telegraph lines and the district messenger systems all come into competition with the postoffices, but that is no good reason for their suppression. It is doubtful whether the government ought to interfere with or undertake anything that can be done more cheaply and better by private enterprise.

Vanderbilt's Retirement.

Mr. Vanderbilt strips himself of his dignities and starts for Europe. Mr. Gould has built himself a yacht and proposes to go abroad. It looks somewhat as though these financial magnates were fleeing from the wrath to come. It may be that they simply are philosophers, who think they have worked long enough and have made money enough, and are entitled to the enjoyment of their ease. But, considering the avidity with which they have pursued their money-getting schemes, there is ground for the suspicion that they think there is profit as well as ease in lying on their oars for a season. Mr. Vanderbilt some time ago showed an appreciation of government bonds as an investment which was remarkable for a man who had so great facilities for making large interest on his capital. There is no reason to doubt his shrewdness and wisdom in worldly matters, since he has been eminently successful in conducting them; and it does not appear that he is disposed to withdraw his attention from the consideration of money making matters, since he is actively engaged in projecting new lines of railroad. It is only with the conduct of the affairs of the old corporations that he, and his father before him, managed and milked, that he disconnects himself. He seems to want fresh fields and pastures new. Perhaps the old corporations are so well established that he finds there is more cream to be gathered on his new ventures than from the watered old ones.

In retiring from his presidencies Mr. Vanderbilt prudently forbore to participate in what actuated him; he was prudent in this because his reputation for veracity would not have secured credence to his explanations. The public will judge from his acts. Their interpretation is really not difficult. It is as clear now as it was when he sold New York Central stock and bought government bonds, and then went heavily into new railroad enterprises, that Mr. Vanderbilt considers almost anything a better property to hold than the heavily capitalized railroads which are called upon to meet the competition of young, vigorous and lightly loaded rivals.

In some of the western counties where deadlocks and perilous political situations have ensued from the conflicts arising out of the conferee system of making a nomination for several counties, the politicians are discussing the substitution of the Ohio system, which leaves the selection of congressional candidates to a convention composed of delegates from each election precinct in the several counties. This is a decided improvement on the conferee system.

The Strikes.

Of course the newspapers now are calling for arbitration in the strikes and threatened strikes. Senator Wallace's brand new bill is summoned to the front. But it is not apparent that there is much of an opening for it in this emergency. The sole question between the employers and employed is as to the value of their labor. In the iron trade the manufacturers say that they cannot afford to pay more wages than they offer. If this be true, they obviously cannot agree to abide by the opinion of arbitrators to the contrary. If they do not know best what they can afford to pay, they know best, at least, what they will pay; and as they appear to have unanimously made up their minds on the subject they have no need for asking the opinion of arbitrators. If the employed are unwilling to accept the terms offered them, the alternative is a cessation of work. This is a free country in which no man can be compelled either to give or take for labor more or less than he pleases. A strike is the natural result of a disagreement as to the value of labor, and the state has no particular concern with it, so long as there is no breach of the peace. The iron manufacturers may as well be idle when their work is unprofitable, and it is quite certain that they will only be idle then. The workmen may as well enjoy their leisure as employ themselves in unprofitable labor, provided they can afford the luxury. When they cannot, they will go to work at wages that will render their labor profitable.

JUDGE LIVINGSTON has been using his eyes and ears to some purpose in his recent walks around the town. Since he has come to appreciate how readily citizens will certify and swear that useless places are necessary to the public accommodation and that places have conveniences which they lack, it has occurred to him that even ministry to the necessities of trade and travel does not involve a breach of the law under which the liquor sellers are licensed. It might not, of course, be necessary for the judges of the court to do the work of the constables and to supply the failure of citizens to bring offenders against the liquor law to the notice of the civil authorities, but the judges cannot, consistently with their duties, reject the evidence of their senses, and when they have reason to suspect violations, the suspicion is certainly justified and heightened if the alleged violators refuse to accept a plain method offered for their self-ventilation.

PERSONAL.

REV. A. BRONSON ALCOCK is seriously ill. DR. R. K. KEM still hangs on the ragged edge. YOK MOKTKE and Due d'Annale are seriously ill. DON CAMERON sails for Europe on the 17th; Jay Gould is in Texas. DUCHES OF SUTHERLAND signed the total abstinence pledge at Torquay, England, early this month, and henceforth will wear the blue ribbon badge. REV. GEORGE DANA BOARDMAN, D. D., says that "John" returned at the 215th street on the morning of the 18th, and then betrayed him for $15.

MR. FOSTER, who died at Fostoria, O., a few days ago, left property worth about $500,000, all of which goes to his son, Governor Foster. Governor Foster is already rich. JOHN W. GARRETT has spent $1,500 in expenses on the Druid hill park aquarium in Baltimore. His latest raid in the way of sea lions, which are on their way from San Francisco. ATTORNEY GENERAL BREWSTER denies in toto the story charging him with having been implicated in a fraudulent transaction whereby a grant of land from the state of Pennsylvania was secured for the establishment of a marine hospital at Erie. REV. D. DURTEE, of the Central Congregational church of Boston, speaks rather disparagingly of the Hub. "It's the hardest place on the planet to do honest work in an Evangelical church," he says. "Unitarianism has the intellectual leadership, but it is in a hurry for results he'd better stay away."

REV. DR. PRISLEY, the eminent High church writer and controversialist, in his will directed that none of his notes on the Hebrew Scriptures or his corrections of Hebrew translations shall be published. CHARLES W. FOLGER, son of the secretary of the treasury, has been appointed clerk in charge of supplies and proposals at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, vice Captain Merrill, promoted to be chief of the bureau. The appointment was made by Mr. Barrill and approved by Secretary Folger. It is stated at the treasury department that the appointment is only temporary and was made at the request of Mr. Barrill. COLONEL E. A. BURKLE, of the New Orleans Times-Democrat, has started home from New York after an unsuccessful attempt to buy the World, of the latter city. Mr. Gould is said to have been willing to sell, but Mr. Hurlbut blocked the way. Colonel Burke has a scheme that looks like the establishment of four allied morning journals—one in New York, a second in New Orleans, a third in Dallas, Texas, and the other in the city of Mexico.

A fire in Tullahoma, Tennessee, yesterday destroyed all the stores in the town, two depots, the Guardian newspaper office, the Tullahoma file works and the wheel and spoke factory. The loss is estimated at $300,000. A fire in Burlington, Wisconsin, on Thursday morning destroyed two newspaper offices and three stores, causing a loss estimated at $75,000. Ten buildings in Greenfield, Illinois, were burned on Thursday morning. Loss $37,000. W. A. Bragg's fertilizer factory in Richmond, Virginia, was burned last evening, with several small stores, and Kelly & White's box factory was damaged. Loss, $20,000. A violent wind storm raged in Southern Wisconsin on Thursday night. Trains running to Milwaukee were delayed, and the telegraphic service was obstructed. In Waukesha damage was done to the churches and other buildings to the amount of $10,000. The weather at Quebec yesterday was "fine and warm." The ice in front of the city was broken up, and it was thought the river would be clear for navigation to Montreal by Sunday.

At the end of the fifth day of the six days' contest at the Boston Casino, the score stands: Leroy (horse), 795 miles; Woodside and Prince (bicycle), 766 miles.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

THE CASE OF HEBER NEWTON.

An Episcopal Journal Calls for Judgment—Various Matters of Denominational Interest. Episcopal Register. Rev. Heber Newton, of New York, has been formally presented to the bishop for trial. Whether the bishop will proceed to a trial or quash the indictment remains to be seen. He has it in his power to do either. We think the presenters have made a mistake. Mr. Newton has undoubtedly taught false doctrine, and, believe, dangerous doctrines. But he has done so rather by implication than in form. In order for a preacher to lay himself open to trial for heresy it is necessary that he should have a clear intellectual notion of what the truth is from which he is departing. If this knowledge is lacking, he is rather to be labored with as idiotus than to be proceeded against as heretical. In this case there is every evidence that the offender is wanting in that knowledge of the truth which makes willful heresy possible. The whole publication in the whole scope of Mr. Newton's much published deliverances that he has ever grasped the Catholic doctrine as the place and function of the Holy Scriptures. He has simply gone from the extreme right to the extreme left. We very much doubt if he is any more—or an less—heretical to-day than he was in an opposite direction 20 years ago. In some cases heresy is plainly recognizable, being defined in advance. In others it is exceedingly difficult to make up a case. We think this question of the place and function of the Holy Scriptures is one of the most unfortunate possible upon which to make an issue. If the case be pressed, we confidently predict that the very best which may be hoped for will be the Scotch verdict of "not guilty," but don't think a trial for heresy, then, is simply a trial for breach of contract. It is not a question as to whether the utterances of the Rev. Mr. Newton are in themselves true or false, but whether they are such as to bring him under the charge of heresy. It will be noticed that, while Mr. Vanderbilt remains in the presidency, and his sons from the vice presidency, under the new by-laws, the position of chairman of the board of directors is created with general supervisory powers. Under this arrangement, Cornelius Vanderbilt becomes chairman of the New York Central and Michigan Central, and William K. Vanderbilt remains president of the Nickel Plate road, and becomes chairman of the Lake Shore directors. Each of them is also a member of the board of the company of which his brother is chairman. This plan relieves Mr. Vanderbilt of the burden of the Nickel Plate road, and devolves it upon those who have been actively engaged in it before.

BLEEDING CANDIDATES.

For the Benefit of the Clergy.

It has been a very general custom for church people who are candidates for office were in the field to call on them for subscriptions for the purpose of assisting to build a church, pay for repairs or to assist in paying off a debt previously contracted. So common has been this practice in this section of country that it has become a matter of course for candidates for office to have their expenses the contributions they would be under the necessity of making for church purposes. Of course, as a general rule, there was no direct protest against this custom, and people that their votes would be forthcoming in return for their candidate's contribution and yet we have more than once heard of offers of this kind, and also of the same offer being made to opposing candidates. There, of course, is no objection, but it has been a common practice for those who solicit these contributions to intimate that the result of compliance would be a large vote from the congregation immediately interested. Such encouragement to bribery for its nothing less than a bribe, but it is emphatically discouraged by the clergy, and all others interested in the purity of churches. No amount of denunciation of the direct purchase of votes will have much weight so long as this indirect bribery is continued, and the practice of the whole system is wrong in its details and its aggregate and the clergyman who hopes to succeed in putting down the evil must fearlessly expose all its ramifications.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Events Near and Across the County Lines. Senator Herr will deliver the Decoration Day oration at Lebanon.

A cigar factory at York employs 110 hands, and will to-day make a shipment of 300,000 cigars. Stewart Vanderbilt, of Milford, N. J., went to bed at Easton on Tuesday night, blowing out the gas instead of turning it off, and will probably die. The "free bridge" people had a large meeting of representative men at Norris-ton on Tuesday night, and a committee was appointed to prepare a petition to Judge Boyer. Charles Weller, recently from Chicago, employed at the Mellert iron works, Reading, died suddenly on Thursday night after drinking fifteen quarts of water, and poisoning is suspected. O. R. Robinson, Cumberland county, while several boys were playing on the railroad track yesterday Edward Donson, aged five years, son of John Donson, a prominent merchant was suddenly run over and instantly killed, his head and neck severed from the body. Rev. P. S. Davis, D. D., of New York county, went to bed at three o'clock Friday morning at a hotel near Calvert station, giving an order to be called three hours later. He was not called until after seven o'clock in the evening, and was then found dead in bed. He blew out the gas when retiring, and was suffocated.

At the funeral of Freddie Robinson yesterday in Lebanon on Monday, the body was wrapped in a blanket, in accordance with his last wishes. "Wrap me in a blanket when I am dead, mother, you know the story of the three little boys who were placed in the cold grave, and in his innocence made the request, which the parents had not the disposition or desire to refuse.

Musical Entertainment.

The young folks of the First Reformed church held an enjoyable entertainment last evening in the basement of the church. Among the number of select pieces of music rendered were Deberiot's seventh march by Prof. Surman, vocal solo by Mr. L. A. Presinger, and a piano solo by Miss Callie Shaeffer, which were all well received. Other features of the evening were a number of dialogues, recitations, etc. All the performances given were in good taste and were ably rendered.

May Walk Postponed.

The May walk of the Liederkranz has been postponed until next Sunday, on account of the threatening weather.

LIQUOR LICENSES.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE COURTS.

The Hartman Will Sustain—Judge Livingston's Remarks on the License Question. In the Hartman will case the jury retired at half past five yesterday afternoon, and were out until half past 10 o'clock, when they agreed. This morning they came into court and rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. This verdict sustains the will as made. In the case of Catherine Herr, vs Henry Eshelman, reasons for a new trial were filed. The license cases. The court took up the licenses and heard the applications for new stands and arguments in those which have remonstrances against them.

VANDERBILT'S WITHDRAWAL.

His Sons Succeed Him in Railway Management. At the annual meeting of the directors of the New York Central, Lake Shore & Michigan Central railroads yesterday, Mr. William H. Vanderbilt formally announced that he would decline a re-election to the presidency of the company. Judge Livingston stated that in regard to this case he had refused to license this house from certain facts that came to his knowledge and from personal observation. He has been taking Sunday walks around the city for some months past in order to learn something concerning the running of licensed places. In passing this place one Sunday he found the entrance open and a great many men passing in and out; he there saw sufficient to convince him that the law was being violated by the selling of liquors. With a view to going to the well as others, he had prepared an affidavit, which was submitted to Klump and he refused to sign it. His honor stated that he had knowledge of other saloon keepers who have violated the law. Some of these could not reach as licenses have already been granted them. Parties who are suspected of violating the laws will hereafter be compelled to sign the affidavit if they desire a license. It reads as follows:

I, now an applicant to the court of quarter sessions of the peace, in and for the county of Lancaster, for a license to keep a restaurant, in the ward, in the city of Lancaster, known as the... I do swear, that during the continuance of this license, I will not keep a restaurant, but a place of business closed on each Sabbath day, and have not at any time, sold, or caused or permitted to be sold, in my house, or on my premises, any whisky, brandy, rum, gin, or any other kind or description of intoxicating drink, or liquor, not expressly authorized by the law under the license I hold. And, I do swear, that I will not keep a restaurant, but a place of business closed on each Sabbath day, and have not at any time, sold, or caused or permitted to be sold, in my house, or on my premises, any whisky, brandy, rum, gin, or any other kind or description of intoxicating drink, or liquor, not expressly authorized by the law under the license I hold. And, I do swear, that I will not keep a restaurant, but a place of business closed on each Sabbath day, and have not at any time, sold, or caused or permitted to be sold, in my house, or on my premises, any whisky, brandy, rum, gin, or any other kind or description of intoxicating drink, or liquor, not expressly authorized by the law under the license I hold.

RUSSIAN JEWS ASSAULTED.

There is a brick house on Middle street, near Rockland, which is occupied by a large number of Russian Jews. Part of the building is used as a store, and it is packed with goods of different kinds. Last evening a party of young fellows who had been drinking went into the store and made an attack on the man in charge, named Nathan. Part of the store was damaged by the attack. The young fellows also attacked them, Miller was cut on the head with a stone and had an ear badly injured. Sargan and his wife were also badly used. The house was also stoned and other damage was done by the ruffians. During the fight some one blew a whistle which was heard by Officer Coyle. When he arrived the gang had left, but Miller and Sargan, who were covered with blood, were taken to the station house, where their wounds were treated. They were before the mayor this morning, but nothing has been done with them. They can scarcely speak a word of English, and it is with the greatest difficulty that their story can be obtained. Isaac Leaman and James Donnelly, of this city, and Thomas Thronton, who claims to be a pipe line employee, have been arrested for being implicated in the affair, and they are held for assault and battery and drunk and disorderly conduct by Alderman A. F. Donnelly. Leaman admits having been at the house.

SOLDIERS' REUNION.

Ninety-Ninth Veteran Association. The ninety-ninth veteran association, composed of members of the 99th Regt. N. Y. V., will give a grand reunion and banquet at Cafe Fuelle, corner of Broad and Chestnut street, Philadelphia, on Saturday next, May 12, the anniversary of the battle of Spotsylvania. Col. Drake, of the United States army, and James Donnelly, of this city, and Thomas Thronton, who claims to be a pipe line employee, have been arrested for being implicated in the affair, and they are held for assault and battery and drunk and disorderly conduct by Alderman A. F. Donnelly. Leaman admits having been at the house.

TEMPERANCE UNION.

At the 14th meeting of the Woman's Temperance Union votes of thanks were passed to the county commissioners for use of the court house for public meeting on April 22; to the gentlemen who kindly gave their hall for conducting the audience taking the collection, &c.; to the audience for their generous contribution; and to the pastors who conducted the religious services. The secretary was directed to notify the parties of such action through the medium of the daily papers, to which, also, thanks are tendered for many favors in publishing notices of the regular and public meetings. The next meeting of the Union will meet again on next Wednesday afternoon at half past two o'clock, in the lecture room of the Duke street M. E. church.
